

Andrea Rosato-Taylor

Andrea Rosato-Taylor is now retired after spending the last 35 years in marketing, sales, and Publisher of various newspapers.

She retired in June of 2021 as the Publisher of the Ladysmith Chronicle and Group Publisher of Cowichan Citizen.

She has been working in media for 35 years. In her various roles with newspapers in San Francisco, Vancouver, and Vancouver Island – she has created and implemented many multi-media products that vary from event marketing, airport signage, creating new digital products, specialty features, magazines etc.

Her “Why” is” you get the community you want by participating in it.”

She is not only passionate about newspapers and multi-media but is passionate about community.

She has been the Chair of the Greater Nanaimo Chamber of Commerce, Director on the Dragon Boat Society, Board of Trustee of the North Cedar Water Board, “Woman of Note” and Chairperson for fundraising for the Vancouver Island Symphony, and is past President of the Downtown Ladysmith Business Association and has been on the Board of the Ladysmith Health Auxiliary. She has also been on the Board of the Ladysmith Chamber of Commerce.

She currently is the President on the board of Arts Council of Ladysmith, Director on the board of the Vancouver Island Symphony and a member of the “Fair Health for all Alliance” and is the Program Chair for Leadership Vancouver Island.

She launched a product 6 years ago in Central Island for Black Press a magazine “Boulevard ” and retired from this endeavor in 2023.